

The Hurlingham Managed Growth Portfolio,

a sub-fund of The Hurlingham Fund
Interim Short Report for the period from 1st November 2009 to 30th April 2010

Investment Objective and Policy

The investment objective of the Hurlingham Managed Growth Portfolio is to provide long-term capital growth from a portfolio of investments. The Fund will achieve this by investing in units in collective investment schemes (which may be unregulated collective investment schemes such as hedge funds), and may also invest in equities, fixed interest securities, money market instruments and warrants.

Subject to the above, the Fund may invest in any asset class and adopt any investment technique or strategy permitted under FSA rules and as detailed in the full prospectus. The Fund may invest in derivatives and forward transactions for investment purposes as well as for the purposes of efficient portfolio management (including hedging).

Total Expense Ratio (TER)

2.89%

The TER shows the annual operating expenses of the Fund including the annual management charge and other expenses. It does not include transaction charges. Funds highlight the TER to help you compare the annual operating expenses to different schemes.

Portfolio Turnover Rate (PTR)

175.70%

The PTR is a ratio that reflects the volume of trading within the Fund over the course of a 12 month period. The PTR is calculated by taking the sum of all transactions in securities less the sum of all transactions in the Fund's shares and is expressed as a percentage of the Fund's average net asset value.

Investment Risks

There is a market risk. This is the risk that the value of investments and any income from them, can fall as well as rise. Neither capital or income is guaranteed.

This Fund may invest in derivatives for investment purposes. Although this may mean that the value of the Fund could be subject to volatility from time to time, investing in derivatives is not expected to alter the risk profile of the Fund.

The Fund may invest in unregulated collective investment schemes (including hedge funds) which do not offer the same level of investor protection as FSA regulated schemes. These schemes may use leverage and have a higher liquidity risk as investments in them may not be readily realisable.

Since this Fund has been launched recently, or is small in size, there is a risk that the charges and expenses allocated to the Fund may be higher than expected if the Fund does not grow as much as planned. This would have an effect on the Fund's performance.

The Fund may have significant holdings in collective investment vehicles and these collective investment vehicles may also be subject to the risks listed above.

Investment Review

Performance

The portfolio has been constructed to provide diversified exposure to a broad range of asset classes. Our exposure to US equities and the US dollar has been vindicated as we have seen the value of sterling fall versus the US dollar and this has contributed to a large part of our outperformance in the last six months. Whilst world stock markets has rallied over the past year they have remained volatile as expected; nevertheless we have maintained our conviction on the US market and its economic recovery. The exposures to fixed income securities and higher yielding shares in the UK have also helped to enhance returns and smooth out volatility.

Over the six months, the Fund is in the top quartile against its peer group and has produced a total return of 13.11%.

Portfolio Activity

Over the reporting period we increased our weighting in gold, and increased our weighting to the US by adding exposure to US large and small cap equities. We have also increased our weighting to Japan through a currency hedged share class to accommodate any depreciation of the yen against sterling. We have added some exposure to emerging market sovereign debt as well as gaining some exposure to higher yielding fixed income securities.

Outlook

We believe that the US is moving towards a sustainable economic recovery but this could remain weak and could be derailed if the US dollar becomes too strong versus other currencies, as this will be detrimental to US exports and would be reflected in US Gross Domestic Product (GDP) numbers. Although we expect an economic recovery in the US, this does not mean that the US stockmarket will not remain volatile, especially whilst the current uncertainty over many European economies remains. We expect the euro to remain under pressure against Sterling and accordingly it is unlikely that we will be looking to increase our modest exposure to European markets in the next half year. Whilst a weaker euro will be of benefit to European exporters, the uncertainty over the future of this relatively new currency and how the European Central Bank (ECB) will deal with the current crisis does mean that we will maintain a cautious outlook for the Eurozone for a while longer yet.

Asia and the emerging markets have performed well over the past year but we again remain cautious on these markets as they will also have to deal with various political and economic uncertainties going forward. Also, many of the BRIC nations (Brazil, Russia, India and China) are now showing signs of increased inflation going forward and this can be a problem if it is allowed to get out of control. Nevertheless, it does show that these economies have continued to grow, and the low amount of debt in these countries (that have not had to prop up their banking systems) has been beneficial. China, India and Brazil, in particular, are showing signs of inflation and will inevitably deal with it in different ways. For example, the Chinese government has forced many of its banks to raise their capital ratios to try to slow down the growth rate of the Chinese property market as they fear they could end up with a property market bubble of their own. Despite our concerns over rising inflation, we do believe that if China and wider Asia can continue to grow at a reasonable rate, then Japan can benefit from the demand for new goods and products.

If Japan can subdue any rise in its currency, then the prospects for Japanese exports remain positive.

We expect to maintain our current weighting to alternative assets and expect this to assist in managing any volatility in the markets by reducing our direct correlation to equity markets. At present we remain positive on the outlook for equities and therefore do not currently feel that we need to increase our allocation to alternative assets or fixed interest securities in the medium term.
